Conscious Language and the Power of Words

Alex Kapitan

radicalcopyeditor.com

Language is power, in ways more literal than
most people think.
When we speak, we exercise the power of
language to transform reality.

The purpose of standards

Standards don't matter. If you can't understand me, tough.

disregard

Standards separate right from wrong. There's one "best" way to speak and write.

correctness

Standards help us communicate. Different contexts call for different standards.

The purpose of conscious language

Don't tell me what I can and can't say. You're restricting my free speech!

disregard

I want to be "PC" and avoid offense. Just tell me the right words to use.

correctness

I care about the impact of my words on others. I want to use words as a tool for good.

The spectrum of language

- ❖ Violent: actively communicates hate, disgust, intolerance
- ❖ Coded: consciously or unconsciously communicates prejudice, disdain, or judgment in covert ways
- ❖ Unquestioned: everyday language with subtle cues regarding who and what is valuable, normal
- ❖ Minimizing: well-intentioned language that unconsciously maintains oppressive norms and supports the status quo
- ❖ Liberatory: affirms all life; communicates compassion, love, and nonviolence; imbues subjects with agency

You can't be neutral on a moving train.

The words we use shape how we
understand ourselves,
how we interpret the
world, how we treat
others. Words make worlds.

Countering harmful language

- ❖ Work to be aware of coded, unquestioned, and minimizing language, avoid it, and subvert it
- ❖ Constantly question the norms and values that are baked into language, and use language that reflects liberatory values
- ❖ Look to authors, scholars, and activists from communities targeted by oppression and follow their lead

Appropriate specificity

- ❖ Broad language is often used in stereotyping ways; using more specific language is a key way to counter this.
  - Latino, Hispanic vs. Puerto Rican, Guatemalan, Peruvian
  - Africa vs. Morocco, Nigeria, West Africa
  - Native Americans vs. Coast Salish peoples, Lummi Nation
  - LGBTQ vs. same-sex relationships, trans/nonbinary
  - People of color vs. Black Americans
  - People with disabilities vs. wheelchair users, neurodivergent people, blind and/or deaf students

Mindfulness around euphemisms

- ❖ “diverse,” “minorities,” “urban,” “inner-city”
- ❖ “differently abled,” “special needs,” “handi-capable,” “physically challenged”
- ❖ “disadvantaged,” “at risk,” “under-privileged,” “under-represented”
- ❖ “discovery,” “arrival”
- ❖ “racially charged”
- ❖ people of color, Black, low-income
- ❖ disabled, disabilities, autistic, neurodivergent
- ❖ systemically oppressed, historically excluded, marginalized
- ❖ invasion, colonization
- ❖ racist, racism

Humanizing language

❖ Avoid using adjectives as nouns

X “Blacks” “transgenders” “paraplegics” “the disabled”

X “the poor” “the deaf” “the homeless” “the elderly”

❖ Avoid equating people with a condition or label

X “schizophrenics” “addict” “felon” “high-school dropout”

❖ Avoid negative, stigmatizing, and pathologizing language

X “victims” “suffering from” “stricken with” “afflicted with”

X “struggling with” “mentally ill” “confined to a wheelchair”

Respecting self-identity language

❖ Never “correct” the language people use for themselves

No, you're a person with autism spectrum disorder and blindness.

I'm autistic and blind.

❖ Accept that words change with time and with context

That's incorrect language.

Um, no. I'm autistic and blind.

❖ Find out what language groups and organizations led by the people being written about use, and follow their lead

“Gender-inclusive” language

- ❖ Use neutral, non-sexist language
  - X “mankind” “fireman” “man the table” “Dr. Smith and Judy”
  - ✓ “humanity” “fire fighter” “staff the table” “Bob and Judy Smith”
- ❖ Avoid gender binary language
  - X “boys and girls” “both genders” “the opposite gender”
  - ✓ “young people” “all genders” “a different gender”
- ❖ Use singular “they”
  - ✓ As a personal pronoun for people who go by they/them
  - ✓ As a generic third-person singular pronoun (instead of “he/she”)

We die. That may be the meaning of life. But we do language. That may be the measure of our lives.

Questions for editors to consider

- ❖ Where are my own areas of discomfort or ignorance? What biases might I be bringing to my work, and how might I expand my worldview?
- ❖ How can I help authors improve without making edits that misrepresent their perspective?
- ❖ Where is my line in the sand when it comes to issues of inclusion/justice?
- ❖ How can I constantly center care over correctness?
